CRIME PREVENTION TIP:

Porch piracy is rampant during the holiday season, that's where you have a package delivered to your home, left on your front door step while you're at work and stolen. Here are some tips to help prevent your holiday treasures from being stolen. First off get the tracking number for all your purchases and do your best to follow up on the anticipated delivery time and date. It's best if someone can be home during the time of delivery, if the seller gives the option of a window the package may be delivered, we suggest taking advantage of that. In addition, arrange to have a signature to be required if it helps you make sure your package is secure. Ask your employer if it is ok if your packages are delivered to your place of work. If you have a security system and cameras in that system, utilize them and make sure they are at such an angle as to keep an eye on your packages. There is also the option to rent a P.O. Box for the holiday season. Some websites offer a service where you can request to have your package delivered to where you may pick it up from a locker with a special code. This helps makes sure your package is in a secure place. If you follow these tips you can help feel more secure that your holiday treasures will be there when you need them.
